Back to Lower Barrington was a great success.

The presentations of early life were fascinating and so were the stories of the characters, families and homes of the area.

Some of the people I talked with on Saturday had come from as far as Queensland and Hobart to be there.

The time capsule from 1986 was dug up and contained papers, letters and coins all in perfect condition.

Also interpretation signage for the old railway was unveiled.

Many thanks to the organising committee for a thoughtful and wonderful weekend.

Congratulations to Love Grove Cottage at Wilmot for its award for the best TakeABreak luxury accommodation in Tasmania.

This is a great commendation for a small business that has been going for less than 12 months.

Last week I attended an opening of a new exhibition of photographs at the Wilderness Gallery at Cradle Mountain.

The photographs are spectacular and well worth a visit.

Also this Thursday at 2pm the new Thylacine display will be opened at the gallery.

This will be a permanent display and will become a must see for everyone with an interest in our early history.
